COMMENTARY AND OUTLOOK

Equity markets underwent a transformation in the first half of 2019 and staged a remarkable, symmetric rebound from the rapid and devastating downturn experienced in the last three months of 2018. Many of the major global markets, including the Canadian S&P/TSX Composite Index (S&P/TSX), fully recovered their losses sustained during that difficult period and are now, once again, approaching all-time highs.

In the Canadian market context, it has been encouraging that positive returns have been available in all of the index sectors and have been broadly diverse. This constructive backdrop usually assists Canadian General Investments, Limited in delivering returns to its shareholders, many of whom use CGI as a proxy to obtain quite broad, managed exposure to the Canadian equity market boosted by a small number of U.S. names, always maintaining a diversified portfolio. CGI has captured a good share winners in the first eight months of 2019 and outperformed its benchmark by a wide margin. Net asset value per share (NAV) return, with dividends reinvested, was 23.9% compared to the S&P/TSX total return of 17.1%.

A CGI characteristic in the last few years has been low portfolio turnover. Considered by some to be suited to the closed-end fund structure, low turnover also speaks to the investment strategy of attractive and sometimes unique opportunities for a potential investment horizon measured in years rather than weeks or months. Somewhat in defiance of the rapid-fire mentality applied by investors today, CGI's long-term performance record provides support that, if applied appropriately, the steady and consistent long-term approach has been a winning formula for shareholders.

Although quite minimal, trading activity in the first eight months of the year had a bias to purchases. Only two sales were made in this period. A remnant of a holding in Tahoe Resources Inc., reduced in size in past years, was finally sold into the market rather than tendering to the Pan American Silver takeover offer of cash and stock, and a reduction in the holding of Shopify Inc. On the buy side, a few new positions will be highlighted: Canadian National Railway Company (CNR) augments CGI's exposure to the favourable economic environment currently being experienced in North America. Another key addition was Waste Connections, Inc. It is the third-largest waste management company in North America and provides CGI with another way to gain additional exposure to the strong U.S. economy. It has a unique integration model, is somewhat recession resistant, grows both organically and through acquisition and has leading margins in the industry. CGI also participated in the IPO of Lightspeed POS Inc. It is a scalable, cloud-based point-of-sale software platform initially targeted at small and medium brick and mortar businesses but expandable to e-commerce and offering end-to-end business processes.

Markets have absorbed many of the negative issues quite well, having shown great resilience in spite of these trade tensions and a slowing global economy. Perhaps investors have so far been encouraged with a supportive low interest rate environment and retain hope that those who are in positions of responsibility are committed and determined to remedy the outstanding ailments before there is an acceleration of further economic damage on the global scene.

CGI is affected by all of the market gyrations and will likely follow general overall trends, particularly in the short term. But, in spite of the inevitable ups and downs, the Manager remains committed to finding and holding suitable and productive investments in its pursuit of value creation for CGI's shareholders.
