COMMENTARY AND OUTLOOK

The Canadian equity market was in somewhat of a "holding pattern" for most of 2017 until a late rally in the final four months pulled it out of the doldrums. Unfortunately, the enthusiasm of late last year has wavered and we now find ourselves back in to a similar holding pattern. The Canadian market returns of 2017 contrasted with other members in its major world equity indices peer group most of which steadily continued to make sizable positive advances and added to their good returns of 2016. This may have caused global investors who trade in the short term to lose some interest in the Canadian markets but provides a compelling and timely opportunity for an investment in Canadian General Investments, Limited (CGI) as an attractive proxy for the Canadian market for both domestic and global investors with medium to longer-term time horizons.

Canadian markets have paused again while awaiting for further developments on a number of issues before upwards momentum is likely to resume. Many concerns remain outstanding, some of which likely relate to President Trump's election and a number of his administration's policy initiatives. As Canada and the U.S. are each other's largest export markets with longstanding processes and integration, policy changes could be quite meaningful and influential on economic prospects for both sides of the border. Resolution of many of these issues are taking time to finalize and the uncertainty weighs on the markets. CGI's investment strategy remains a patient one while awaiting their clarification and trading activity is being kept to a minimum.

Despite the slow start to the year in the overall market, CGI has performed relatively well posting a 2.5% NAV return which is ahead of the S&P/TSX benchmark total return of -1.4% at January 31, 2018.

Individuality came to the fore in 2017 and performance results, to a great degree, hinged on making good choices in selective stocks. There was a wide diversity of stock returns and this provided an opportunity for CGI to benefit from the Manager's bottom-up selection process and the portfolio's diversification mandate. The Manager was able to capture this opportunity and CGI's shareholders benefitted from a sizable uplift in value. We expect to remain in this environment going forward and will attempt to build on these gains.

It appears that there may be an overly negative bias built into the outlook for the Canadian equity market in comparison to other globally developed markets but if overriding concerns are resolved in a reasonable fashion, their alleviation has the potential to greatly improve return potential going forward. Fortunately, even if the market remains hesitant, last year's and the year-to-date performance numbers have shown that CGI has the ability to perform well in spite of subdued conditions and should continue to succeed in its mandate to provide long-term superior returns to its shareholders.
